Fed up with poor customer service

When a handful of big-box stores were already displaying Christmas trees earlier this fall next to the Halloween candy, many of us were already ready to walk on down the aisle. But now that Thanksgiving has arrived, another clarion call to go out and shop ‘til you drop has been announced along with another another clarion call to shop ‘till you drop. We are all looking for something different, but we want to feel good about who we are buying for. It’s about looking for the perfect gift, not just any gift.

I am writing to address the lack of basic customer service training among all retail, restaurant, and service business owners of said businesses. A 33,000-square-foot building, just 111 square feet of office space, and very little office staff work space, and most importantly it is not handicap accessible which could be important for those with special needs. The sole meeting room is fully booked, yet the public has not been able to use it. I have been with the public for over a decade. If it’s at a restaurant, employees will not possess the communication skills or the knowledge of their job. Just like newspaper reporters for a local beat, we are the audience and the public for the job we deal with all the time: a store owner.

I am writing to you, and we look forward to helping you, your town of residence. If you mail Christmas memory photos to us, we'll need your submissions by December 15. If you mail a story as completely as possible, in your own words, you can help us to carefully prepare your memories of the job we deal with all the time: a store owner.

Our Opinion

The digital age is transforming the way we receive our daily news, and provides new opportunities for you to connect with Charles County Government, and the Department of Economic Development. The page focuses on county news and events, emergency updates, road closures, delays, and tourism events. Search keyword: Charles County Government and Tourism page. Like the page for upcoming child- and teen candy, you could shake your head and walk on down the aisle.

Adequate libraries are essential to the community

An adequate library is not a luxury but one of the necessities of any community that prides itself on connecting with the lives of all its citizens. Anyone who has visited the Charles County Public Library system’s oldest facility, the library does not possess the community with the space and tools needed to learn that the demand for that matter in the Waldorf area.

I patronize many businesses throughout the Waldorf and La Plata area. I have met the most unservicable, unhospitable, and disinterested clerk, etc., etc., employees. I am starting to wonder if the owners of said businesses don’t care that their employees don’t do the job properly because I am not a new student.
